Where Can I Get Further Help?

Short Description: A small book helping people who are caught up in unresolved conflict situations

Sleepless nights, loss of appetite, broken relationships, and emotions going crazy with anger, bitterness, and anxiety: all are symptoms of times of conflict. Unfortunately, churches and Christians are not immune. How are we supposed to respond to others when we are in conflict? What kind of guidance can the Bible give us? Does gospel-grounded truth address tension in our relationships? What practical steps should we take if we're experiencing relationship difficulty? These are some of the questions this mini-book will answer.

Reading Audience

- People who experience tension in their relationships
- Families experiencing disagreement
- Pastors, counselors and Christian workers

Features and Benefits

- Highly relevant topic today
- Easy to read and apply
- May be used with confidence to bring the gospel message clearly
- Good for use in small groups or one-to-one counseling situations
- Endorsed by key counseling organizations

Author Ernie Baker (M.Div., D.Min.) is Professor of Biblical Counseling at The Master's College and Seminary in Southern California. He served as a pastor for 25 years, is a certified conciliator with Peacemaker Ministries, and a Fellow with The Association of Certified Biblical Counselors (ACBC). Ernie and Rose have six children and seven grandchildren.

*"In a fallen world full of anger, hatred and fighting, we need help to figure out how to sort through the mess. Thank you, Ernie Baker, for providing a biblically sound treatment of a very hard topic—conflict."
—Deepak Reju, Ph. D, Pastor of Biblical Counseling and Families, Capitol Hill Baptist Church (Washington, DC)*

*"Ernie gives thoughtful help, transparently revealing his struggles in conflict, and giving hope to those who feel lost in problems they don't know how to resolve."
—Steve Viars, D.Min. Senior Pastor, Faith Ministries, Lafayette, IN*
